GOLF HOT TIP OF THE MONTH

For most club golfers the thought of having a 30-foot putt can be very daunting. A common problem for most players is their first putt being a long distance from the hole - leaving the door open for a dreaded three putt!

A simple solution when practising a long putt is to place four golf tees approximately two feet around the hole creating a square. The goal then is to get all the balls into the square.

Having a bigger target to aim for will take some of the pressure off and will only leave you with a tap in putt! Using this practice drill will help with the speed at which you hit your putts and when you next play a round of golf it will hopefully eliminate your three putts!
